This is a three bay wide, three story high rowhouse of running bond brick with flat, double hung proportionally spaced and symetrically organized windows, stone sills, brick lintels, and a flat roof. The cornice is wood with long scroll-saw brackets extending on to the face of the building. The brick grilles have extra molding below them.

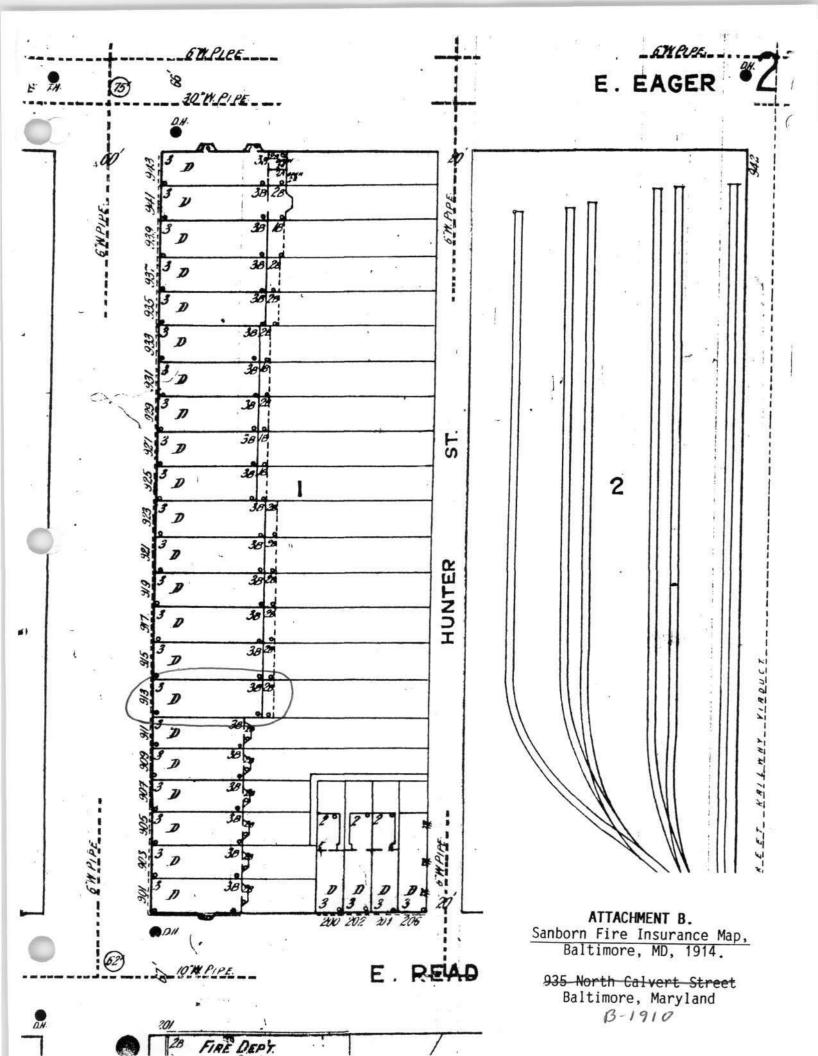

The stone foundation wall is punctuated by two six light casment windows to the right of a stone stoop and three stone steps.

The first story facade is punctuated by flat wooden double doors surmounted by a full arch transom and outlined by decorative moulding. To the right of the door, the facade is punctuated by two six light windows that carry decorative grillwork.

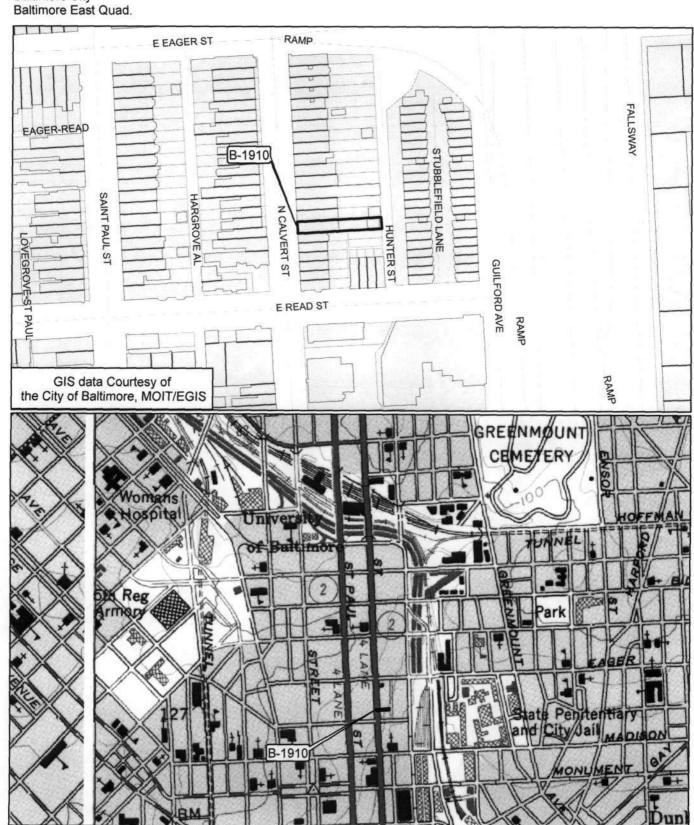

The second and third story facades are each punctuated by three windows of two over two lights.
